ABSTRACT

Compiled from information supplied by the California State Library and by the ten library systems served by the Bay Area Reference Center, this directory covers indexes generated by libraries, as well as special collections and large subject collections in Northern California libraries. The main section of the publication is arranged alphabeticaly by subject; entries consist of a brief annotation for the index or special collection, description of format, years covered, whether it is on-going, whether it is reference or circulating, if photocopying is possible, and the type of assistance the library will provide. The final section lists libraries that contributed information; it is arranged alphabetically by system, then by library, and contains all subject headings used for the systems' collections and in-house indexes. SPECIAL COLLECTIONS AND IN-HOUSE INDEXES. 4

CONTRIBUTING LIBRARIES. 64

This publication is supported in whole by the U.S. Department of Education, under the provisions of the Library Services and Construction Act, Title I and III, administered in California by the state librarian. However, the opinions expressed herein do not necessarily reflect the position or policy of the U.S. Department of Education or the California State Library and no official endorsement by the U.S. Department of Education or the California State Library should be inferred.

Preface

This first edition of the Directory of Special Collections and In-House Indexes is designed to aid Northern California librarians in identifying sources for information beyond their own collections. The information was gathered by asking system reference coordinators to designate librarians in their system who would complete our work form on their collection or in-house index. Consequently the amount of information given was not always consistent, nor was the interpretation of what constituted a special collection. The compilers excluded some collections because they were obvious subject strengths but included others because we felt they were unique within their library system or perhaps might be of interest to other libraries.

The main body of the directory is arranged alphabetically, first by subject, then by system, and then by individual library within the system. Entries in this section consist of a brief annotation for the index or collection, a description of its format, years covered, whether it is on-going, whether it is reference or circulating, if photocopying is possible, and the type of assistance (telephone, mail or TWX) the library will provide. The final section is a list of libraries contributing to the directory; this list is arranged alphabetically by system, then by library, and contains all subject headings used for the systems' collections and in-house indexes.

The following definitions were used:

Special Collection - A collection on a certain subject or period gathered for some particular reason, usually of local interest. A special collection sometimes has rare and/or unusual items and there is an effort to expand and develop the collection.

In-House Index - A library-generated index, usually on 3 x 5 cards, that is not covered by a published source. It can be active or inactive.

There are probably other special collections and in-house indexes in Northern California public libraries that can be included in a future, expanded directory; however, this edition should be a useful reference tool in the interim.

The compilers would like to thank everyone who provided information for this publication and helped in its production.
